It was a dark night; the cloud was thick, and the loud noise of the thunder was becoming scary. All the sheep had been gathered in a safe place, with a lamp in the middle to keep them warm. The shepherd kept his attention across the field as he pulled on his coat; he grabbed his staff and held his torch...

"Father, are you going after it?" His son, who had been watching quietly, spoke from behind. "Yes, son, I can't leave it out there in danger. It's going to be a long stormy night; I have to go find it and bring it home for safety." "But my Lord, you still have the ninety- nine, why go after just a single one that strayed?" One of the servants spoke out from a corner.

The shepherd turned and said, "The same way I love one is the same way I love all. My eyes never leave anyone out; this is the way I have always gone after any of them that stray. "The servant protested, "But this particular sheep has always given you concern; it doesn't listen to your instructions, which is why it is always in trouble."

"It doesn't matter," the shepherd cuts in. And without wasting time, dashed into the cold night. It wasn't long before He found the lost sheep, the downpour had started, and it was left beaten and stranded under an old tree. The shepherd carefully picked it up, tucked it under his coat, and headed back home. Grateful to be found again, it lay still in the shepherd's arms inside his coat. Then he began the journey home.

The lost sheep lay still and content within the shepherd's protection, grateful to be rescued. After all, in the shepherd's eyes, everyone matters, everyone is worth saving, and everyone deserves a chance to find their way home, even in the worst storms.

My dear friend, The Shepherd of your soul is searching for you to redeem you from the pain of your lonely days and the storms of life. Accepting his offer to help you is accepting a new beginning with a clean slate to life (2 Corinthians 5:17). Your past will be forgiven and your future will be secured.

To accept this offering of a new life, say this from your heart "Father, I am lost. But, as this sheep, you keep searching and reaching out for me. Today, I accept you as my Lord and Saviour.

Forgive my sins and give me a new heart. Amen."

Welcome back home!

God did it!

THE SITUATION:

We eventually gave birth to our son after waiting for some years. However, he developed complications due to the negligence of the medical personnel. We almost lost him but thank God for the intervention of another Doctor, a member of Daystar. We thought the storm was over until he turned one and then two years and was not yet walking. We received a series of revelations that he would walk, but as parents, we were concerned and worried. We visited paediatricians and a Neurologist who ran a series of tests on him.

WHAT GOD DID:

During Operation PUSH, one of the prayer points was that everything in the spiritual should come to physical reality. So, the Neurologist then gave us a referral letter on Friday to take him to see the physiotherapist and speech therapist on Monday. However, God fulfilled His promise and the fact that He won't share his glory with anyone. On Saturday evening, the boy, who had never stood up on his own, got up and started walking unaided. Hallelujah. His word works wonders at Daystar.

PRAISE THE LORD!
